Q3. There are two referendums being held on 8 March- the Family Referendum and the Care Referendum and it is possible to vote yes or no on each. To what extent are you decided on whether you will vote YES to support or NO to oppose the proposed changes to the Constitution in each case [ASK ALL. RANDOMISE]

A. Family Referendum . The referendum on families that proposes to amend the Constitution to provide for a wider concept of family, to include non-marital families, by including the text: "whether founded on marriage or on other durable relationships" when referring to families in article 41.1.1. It also proposes the deletion of the words "on which the family is founded" when referring to the institution of marriage in article 41.3.1.

- B. Referendum on Care. The Care Referendum proposes to remove text referring to the importance of the life of women within the home and that the State should endeavour to ensure that mothers should not have to go to work to the neglect of their 'duties in the home'. It proposes replacing it with text that reads: "The State recognises that the provision of care by members of a family to one another by reason of the bonds that exist among them gives to society a support without which the common good cannot be achieved and shall strive to support such provision."
